

CONFLICT MINERALS - DISCLAIMER

"Conflict Minerals" refers to minerals or other derivatives whose use could directly or indirectly finance armed groups engaged in civil wars that result in serious social and environmental abuses.

In July 2010, the U.S. passed the Dodd-Frank Financial Reform & Consumer Protection Act, Section 1502(b), which requires all U.S. public companies and their suppliers to disclose the use of the conflict minerals chain of custody.

On 17 May 2017, the European Parliament and the Council adopted Regulation (EU) 2017/821 laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold, originating in conflict-affected or high-risk areas.

Although Italcoppie Sensori is not a listed company in the United States and is not subject to SEC reporting, based on its Code of Ethics, it fully supports both legislations and its position is to avoid the conscious use of conflict minerals.

Italcoppie Sensori s.r.l. is opposed to the use of materials and/or minerals from conflict zones such as the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and surrounding countries, and supports an end of violence and human rights violations in the extraction of human rights.

Among the materials used by Italcoppie Sensori, only Tin (tinning wire) and Gold (contact coatings) fall within the materials of Conflict Minerals' European and US regulations. In this regard, Italcoppie Sensori points out that:

- IT DOES NOT purchase the metals listed above directly from mines or smelters;
- The quantities used each year are insignificant
- Gold and Tin are purchased from wholesalers located in Italy or Europe.

Italcoppie Sensori, aware of the duty of diligence that is incumbent on each company using these metals, declares that:

- it cannot be considered an "Importer" within the meaning of the Conflict Minerals Regulation.
- it fulfils its duty of care by requiring its suppliers to fully comply with Conflict Minerals regulations, even with contractual supply constraints.

On the basis of the above, Italcoppie Sensori, given the quantitative irrelevance of materials in the production process, does not fall within the scope of application of the above legislations and has no obligation to comply with requests to fill in any declarative questionnaire and/or declarations.

We hope that this statement contains the required information.

Thank you and best regards,

Italcoppie Sensori s.r.l
